Cornish & Carey Commercial, one of Northern California's most dominant real estate forces, recently partnered with West Coast property management firm RiverRock Real Estate in a new venture called C&C RiverRock to offer property management services to the Northern California real estate market.

Rebecca Rogers, a property management veteran of 14 years, will head C&C RiverRock's operations out of C&C's Walnut Creek office.

C&C's property management program includes services such as handling tenant relations, formal tenant retention programs, building operations and maintenance, service contract management, lease administration and property accounting.

The new joint venture uniquely sets itself apart from the competition by offering additional specialty services such as preparation of annual operating budgets, variance analysis, preventive maintenance, energy conservation programs and fire-life-safety system development.
